SYNOPSIS

Teresa is a young disabled singer determined to be somebody in the world of traditional Italian music, despite the difficulties due to her physical condition, the post-seismic context and her freaky helpers.

A wild mockumentary entirely shot with local actors in a brand new district created around a container area, after the 2016 center Italy earthquake.

DAMIANO GIACOMELLI

After a training related to multimedia communication and writing for cinema, Damiano Giacomelli has been investigating since 2010 the communities of the Apennine hinterland through film projects, film training activities with Officine Mattòli and the artistic direction of the Borgofuturo festival. In recent years, he has worked as a screenwriter for TV series, films and directed various audiovisual products, including documentaries for TV and short movies to promote companies and festivals.

After "Un rovescio"/Weather Vain (2014) and "La strada vecchia/The old road" (2018), Spera Teresa (2019) is his second short film.

In 2019, his first documentary film, entitled "Noci sonanti", will also be released.
